

A B S T R A C T

The measurement method makes use of the mobile telephones of individuals as an indicator of their 5 presence in a geographical area. The method makes it possible to distinguish between variation in the population usually present in a geographical area and variation in the population additional thereto.